Daylilies

If there's a "sure bet" perennial, it must be the daylily. They thrive and tolerate a wide variety of soil conditions, are not troubled by diseases or pests, and bloom for years with virtually no attention. The daylily's botanical name, Hemerocallis, means "beauty for a day", and indeed most daylily flowers open in the morning and die by nightfall. However, each flower stem typically has at least a dozen flower buds, so the plant stays in bloom for several weeks.

Daylilies are well-suited for many different uses in the garden and landscape. The shorter, more compact varieties work well planted directly into perennial borders, where their blooms provide a welcome mid-summer boost. In groups of 3 or 5, daylilies are ideal for landscape plantings, especially when paired with ornamental grasses and small shrubs. Daylilies are also the perfect plant for mass plantings along a fence or walkway, where they'll form a dense, weed-proof display. Come check out all of the varieties we have to offer!
